Presentation	This drink is visually appealing. You find yourself savoring its appearance prior to consumption.	The drink looks nice enough but does not have the wow factor.	The drink is purely utilitarian, no aesthetics whatsoever.	You find yourself hoping it tastes much better than it looks.
Taste	A delightful concoction. Provokes an involuntary "Aaaahh!"	Tastes good and you would like another one.	Tastes like fine, but you would pass on a refill.	You will need to bring the bottle to the table to prove it wasn't just regular wine.
Does it Spritz?	The preparer has made this spritz in a way that the bubbles are bubbling. The energy is right. When it spritz, you spritz, we spritz,	The preparer has incorporated the bubbly in a way that makes you want to drink this seaside somewhere. Well, at least more regularly.	The preparer has incorporated the sparkling wine in a way that detracts from the overall taste, presentation of the drink, and the overall spirit of spritz.	The preparer has decided that it is in fact not the summer of spritz. This drink dishonors the spritz and tbh the preparer's family.
Summer Aura	This spritz is the drink of the summer. You have witnessed the Law Roach + Zendaya effect in a glass. Magic hands have served you and transported you momentarily to a beach chair somewhere.	This drink is classy and meets the criteria, but there is just something missing from the perfect summer experience.	This drink is not the drink to convert you, but you could see yourself enjoying it more if there were some tweaks.	This drink does not deserve to be drank in the summer... or possibly ever.
